

QS launches latest product – QScourses.com

Description

There has been an upward growth trend in the number of prospective students searching and applying for business and management related courses here in the UK.Â

In light of this, QS has partnered up with local institutions to offer a comprehensive directory containing detailed information on more than 5,000 courses spanning the higher education spectrum.

QScourses.com enables prospective students, globally, to search for business-related courses offered by UK universities and business schools. The platform also offers a free student support service that guides prospective students through the application process, helping them to identify programs that match their background and requirements, as well as assisting universities in their search for finding quality students to fill their programs.

To find out more about QScourses.com, contact Anca Bratu.